fall. Mrs Gibson's mother, who was a daughter of Senator McMillan of Michigan, was credited with having defeated this plan, in conjunction with another woman well known in society, whose daughter had been seen frequently in Gibson's company. A reconciliation followed this intervention, but a fortnight ago Gibson left his Rhode Island Avenue home to live with his brother, Richardson Gibs. , an attorney of the capital.

Wilton J. Lambert, Othson's attorney, said to-day that his client would oppose the suit, and this has greatly quickened interest in the matter because of the promise that the trial will be public.

The Gibsons were married Feb. 23, 1909. Reginald C. Vanderbilt and Paul Region.

The Gibsons were included in the control of the ushers and many other well known people attended the affair. This was Gibson's second marriage, his first wife, Miss Minna Field, a daughter of Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page, and a niece of Marshall Field of Chicago, all of the control of the contro naving divorced him eight years ago.
